American Attitudes toward the Middle East

A PUBLIC OPINION POLL BY SHIBLEY TELHAMI
A survey of the

Shibley Telhami, Director
Stella Rouse, Associate Director

Valuable assistance was provided by Scott Willoth, Tisha Jett, Lauren Morris, and January Lee from Nielsen Scarborough. Brittany Kyser, Connor Kopchick, Tamya Anderson, Molly Schreier, and Anthony Richardson were particularly helpful.

*The University of Maryland Critical Issues Poll probes domestic and international issues that are central to our policy discourse and is led by Professors Shibley Telhami and Stella Rouse.

The survey was carried out September 3-20, 2019 online from a nationally representative sample of Nielsen Scarborough's probability-based panel, originally recruited by mail and telephone using a random sample of adults provided by Survey Sampling International. The poll was conducted among a national poll of 3,016 respondents, with a margin of error of +/- 1.78%. Overall, the sample was adjusted to reflect population estimates (Scarborough USA+/Gallup) for Americans. The survey variables balanced through weighting were: age, gender, race/ethnicity, household income, level of education, census regional division, and political party affiliation.
Survey Methodology
(October 2019)

The survey was carried out October 4-10, 2019 online from a nationally representative sample of Nielsen Scarborough's probability-based panel, originally recruited by mail and telephone using a random sample of adults provided by Survey Sampling International. The poll was conducted among a national poll of 1,260 respondents (958 for the Syria question), with a margin of error of +/- 2.76%. Overall, the sample was adjusted to reflect population estimates (Scarborough USA+/Gallup) for Americans. The survey variables balanced through weighting were: age, gender, race/ethnicity, household income, level of education, census regional division, and political party affiliation.
American Attitudes toward Syria and Iran
As you may know, the United States has recently announced the withdrawal of its forces from northern Syria, ahead of a Turkish military campaign there. President Trump explained the move by saying: "it is time for us to get out of these ridiculous Endless Wars, many of them tribal, and bring our soldiers home." Critics have argued that it was the wrong move because it leaves our Kurdish allies in northern Syria vulnerable and gives the upper hand to Turkey which, although a member of NATO, is considered by some as a foe whose aims have been questioned.

Tell me how you feel about the move to withdraw U.S. forces from northern Syria:

Now tell me, which of the following is closer to your view?
Regardless of how BDS defines itself, it is an anti-Israel organization attempting to weaken Israel and to undermine its legitimacy. Some of its supporters are opponents of Israel’s very existence and may even be anti-Semitic.

BDS is a legitimate, peaceful way of opposing Israeli occupation of the Palestinian territories. Inspired by the South African anti-apartheid movement, BDS urges action to pressure Israel to comply with international law. Opposing Israeli policy does not equal anti-Semitism.

Among those who think America’s military involvement in Afghanistan has been unsuccessful

Which of the following factors do you think is MOST important in explaining the reason for failure in Afghanistan?
It was futile to send troops to fight the war on terrorism under any circumstances.

The threat of terrorism from al-Qaeda requires principally non-military means.

The threat posed by al-Qaeda did not require an all-out war on Afghanistan.

The intervention in Iraq, which reduced the American ability to fight in Afghanistan effectively.

Our inability to build effective alternative structures to the existing political and social order in Afghanistan.

The U.S. should have never stayed this long and should have left immediately after the collapse of the Taliban regime in Afghanistan.
